Each year the Michael and Marian Ilitch Department of Surgery hosts a holiday function for the faculty, residents, and families. All are invited to drop in for a toast of good cheer and for a strolling dinner and cocktails. Dr. Donald Weaver (WSUGS 1979) serves as the host for this annual function, which is always a time for happiness and pleasantries. This year the function was held at the Century Grille on Friday, December 6th. Many were in attendance, including Dr. David Edelman (WSU/GS 2002/09), the Department of Surgery Program Director, and his many residents.

Richard D. Anslow, MD

Dr. Richard D. Anslow (WSUSOM 1962) did his training in internal medicine following his medical school graduation and became one of the leading internists in the Detroit Medical Center, particularly at the Harper University Hospital. Dr. Anslow has always had the mind of a surgeon, and whenever he referred a patient to one of his surgical colleagues, one knew that this patient truly needed an operation. Many of us always thought of him as a surgeon-at-heart. Recently, Dr. Anslow made a significant donation to the Wayne State Surgical Society in memory of a close friend and, thus, made it official that he is now an honorary member of our department. Following a very busy career in the Detroit area, Dick moved out west to continue his practice out there until his recent retirement. All of the surgical clan welcome Dick as an honorary member of the WSSS.

The Development of a Surgeon Part 1

Dr. Waldo Lorain Cain was a long-term private practicing surgeon in southeast Michigan and in the Detroit Medical Center. Throughout the years, he was a tremendous help in the technical and cognitive training of surgical residents. Each year, the residents would choose their favorite private practicing teacher/surgeon who would receive a special plaque. This award was won by Dr. Waldo Cain so many times that the plaque is now described as the “Cain Award.”

Recently, Dr. Joseph Sferra (WSUGS 1991) uncovered some information regarding a University of Michigan Medical School project entitled “Documenting the Health Care Experience of African Americans in Southeast Michigan, 1940-1969.” A wise man once said that “Knowing where you’ve been helps determine where you are going.” The following are some excerpts from that interview.

Dr. Waldo Cain and his bride,
Dr. Natalia Tanner-Cain

In response to questions about Dr. Cain’s early years, he responded:

“Down on the farm in Alabama one thing was certain. In my family, we knew who the boss was. My daddy was the boss. I come from a paternalistic family. Even though we say my mother was the matriarch, my father was the patriarch. Everybody worked, you know, on the farm. As soon as you were big enough, you’d go in the fields and you worked, and until you became big enough to work, you were the water boy. I was the water boy. But in the summer, from sunup to sundown, you’re out in the field. My father was a very successful farmer. I admire him more than anybody else. I was born, he had a huge farm and he must have had, maybe, I’d say at least half a dozen, maybe more, farm hands to work for him. In those days we didn’t have any tractors. There were no mechanized things. Everything was pulled by an animal and he had four mules and two horses. Most people around the area didn’t have more than one mule, but he had four mules and two horses and everybody worked. We had a pretty big house. There were lots of kids at home. One of my father’s favorite statements when he would come through the house, just around daylight, was ‘All right, let’s gentle, boys! Let’s get out in the field and go!’”

Dr. Can had five sisters and six brothers, all of whom eventually moved to Detroit. When talking about his oldest brother, he replied, “My oldest brother, the one that gave me the job, was a brick mason. He worked for various contractors in Alabama and when he came north...I remember him saying he was so surprised that they didn’t really let him work on the job in Detroit. They had unions. He joined the union and the union would allow you to lay so many bricks per day. He wasn’t used to working like that. He was used to just going out there and doing a whole day’s work. So, he always had two jobs. He would go to one job and lay his quota of bricks by eleven o’clock. Then, he’d go have lunch and go to another job and lay his quota of bricks the rest of the day. So, he had two jobs for years. Because of union restrictions, he was only allowed to lay so many bricks a day. My sister that just died, is next to him. The one I talked about that was a school teacher. I had another brother who was next to her who was a hustler in the family, Tom. Tom had never had a job working for anybody in his life. That’s the truth. He went to college for one year and decided that college was not for him. He dropped out and came north and he was a street hustler. He was a very successful street hustler. By the time I was in college, he had a taxi-cab line, owned part of a bowling alley, and the Three Sixes (nightclub). It was downtown. Down in Paradise Valley, there was a club called the Three Sixes. It was a nightclub and bowling alley combined and he owned a piece of that. Back in the days when Joe Louis was in his heyday, Tom was extremely successful in all of his hustles. He went to all of Joe Louis’ fights. I guess you’d call him a high-roller in those days. He was known in Paradise Valley as Pepper Ed. Pepper Ed Cain. He never had a job of any kind. He bought a tavern on the west side and called it the Blackhawk Tavern, and he kept that tavern for years. As a matter of fact, one of my brothers-in-law worked for him tending bar and running the Blackhawk.”

Dr. Cain was always proud of the work ethic of his brother, Howard. “I had a brother named Howard. I don’t think he ever went to college. By the time I became aware of what was going on, he had a taxi in Gadsden. In those days, you know, they had taxis for white people and taxis for black people. He left Gadsden (Alabama) in a hurry. I don’t remember so well but I think it was because he got into a fight right downtown. I guess I must have been 12 years old. He got into a fight right downtown in Gadsden with a white taxi driver. I don't know what they were fighting over, but Howard hit the white taxi driver in the head with a monkey wrench. Now, East Gadsden is where we lived. He came home and told Papa what had happened. We lived up on a hill in an isolated area, even from East Gadsden. We lived, maybe, about a mile from the highway up on top of a hill. There were two houses up there. The family next door was white and we were the black family up there and you had to drive on an incline, probably 150 yards from the road down at the bottom, before you got to our house. After Harold came home and told Papa what had happened, Papa told him, 'Son, you've got to leave this town tonight. Today.' A bunch of white guys in cars came out. They were going to lynch Harold. About the time they got there, Papa had his shotgun and we had some friends who had shotguns and they said, 'Ok, you're going to lynch him? Come and get him!' They thought better of it and left. When they left, Papa took Harold in the car and took him to Anniston, which is 30 miles down the road from Gadsden, and put him on the train to leave Gadsden because he was going to get lynched for hitting that white man in the head with a wrench. He never went back to Gadsden. He came here to Detroit. He was probably the least educated of all our family. He came here and he became a personal man Friday, a bodyguard, chauffeur, everything to Walter (Spike) Briggs. (The Briggs family owned Briggs Manufacturing, which made body parts for Chrysler and they also owned the Detroit Tigers with the baseball park on Michigan and Trumbull Avenues being known as 'Briggs Stadium.')

When questioned about people who influenced him the most, Dr. Cain replied, "I think my parents were the most influential people in my life, particularly my father. As a child, my father was the most influential person to me. All he emphasized was work, work, work, and get yourself something in your head. Both my parents believed that you get what you earn. I remember I wanted a bicycle. I guess I must have been 10 or 11 years old, and my daddy wouldn't buy me a bicycle. He said you have to earn it. He told me I had to pick 100 pounds of cotton. 'Wally, you don't even know anything about cotton. A good hard-working grown man can pick 500 pounds of cotton a day.' My father set my scale and said, 'I'll buy you a bicycle if you pick 100 pounds of cotton.'" When Dr. Cain was questioned as to whether this referred to 100 pounds of cotton in a day or in a week, he responded, 'Oh no, one day! If a hard-working grown man can pick 500 pounds, he figures his boy ought to pick 100 pounds. That's how he set the goal and I couldn't do it. I'd get up in the morning, boy, and I'd go in....see, they won't let you start picking cotton until the dew dries off. You don't know anything about that sort of stuff, but overnight, the cotton in the cotton bolls gets wet with dew and you can't put it in a bag because it'll, I don't know, mildew or whatever it does. So you wait until it dries off. I used to get up, I'd get out in the field, boy, soon as they say you can start picking, I'd start picking. I picked cotton all day long, hard. I wouldn't hardly take any time off for lunch and at the end of the day I'd have, maybe, 85 pounds. Papa had a lot of workmen when cotton picking time came. In addition to his regular people he had working for him, he'd hire a whole lot of other people to come, because you've got to get the cotton out of the field and get it to the gin. The people knew that I was trying to pick 100 pounds TO try to get this bike, and they also knew that I couldn't make 100 pounds. So, after about, I don't know, maybe three or four days, when the time came to weigh in every night, people would get in that sack and pull a handful out and say, 'Here, take this.' So eventually, I got 100 pounds. I got a little more than 100 pounds and Papa knew. You know he knew I didn't make that damn cotton, but he bought me the bike anyway, because I gave it my best shot."

Stay tuned, more to come next month.

HOLIDAY GREETINGS FROM THE OUTFIELD

Dr. Dan Smith (WSUGS 1988) and his bride, Norita send holiday greetings to the WSSS family.

Merry Christmas

Christmas 2019

Greetings from the Smiths! Here is a family update:

In February Mark's wife Anna delivered a wonderful boy (Liam Daniel) – very fun baby. Anna is back to work in urgent care in Stillwater. Mark is halfway through his fourth year in general surgery residency at Hennepin County Medical Center, and is in the process of applying to Minimally Invasive/Bariatric Surgical fellowships. This would begin after his fifth year at HCMC.

Steve returned to work in finance at the Wells Fargo office in downtown Minneapolis. He has a second job working at UPS at night.

Scott was deployed to Afghanistan (Army Ranger) in October. Scott's wife Jenna is counting the days for his return in mid-January. Jenna works in a cardiac ICU in one of the Tacoma hospitals.

Christina is graduating this week from nursing school (RN) and will be taking her boards and looking for work. It will be interesting to see if over time, she integrates her degrees in criminology/forensics as part of her nursing work.

Julia is a junior at Loyola – Chicago (pre-med). She remains the goalie for the women's hockey team and will be taking her MCAT's this spring.

Norita continues to work in Med-Surg at the Bemidji hospital and for about the seventh year is president of the Park Rapids Youth Hockey Board. She claims this is her last year?

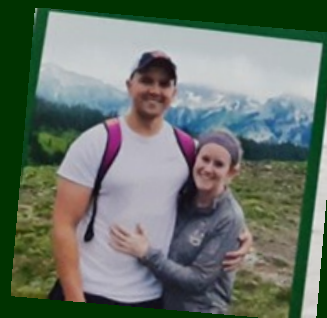

Dan continues his surgical practice with an emphasis in Bariatrics. Dan's partner is going to be deployed (Air Force Reserve) in late January and Dan will be on-call continuously for the six week deployment. When Mark is done training, he and Anna will likely be moving north with Mark joining Dan's practice (2022).

We hope you have a blessed Christmas and a great 2020!

HOLIDAY GREETINGS FROM THE OUTFIELD

Dr. Robert G. Wiencek (WSUGS 1988), a very busy cardiothoracic surgeon in Las Vegas, Nevada, and his patient care team, send 2019 Holiday Greetings to the WSSS Family. Dr. Wiencek's nurse practitioner's, Ms. Jin Lang and Ms. Lydia Nefedov keep Bob out of trouble. Bob and his family wish the best to the extended clan for 2020.

Remembering all of you at this time of year and wishing you a Christmas rich in memories and many blessings in the year ahead.

Stefan & Shirley Fromm

FROMM CHRISTMAS 2019

December 3, 2019

Another year gone by and time to wish every one a happy and blessed season. May the reason for Christmas be renewed in us and give us hope in the year ahead. We have been blessed with a year of health and the joy of family and friends.

We spent Christmas in Vidalia, GA with Sandi and her family. Trace, was home, he works for Mutual of Omaha in Nebraska as an actuary. Tyler is a Junior at GA Southern in nearby Statesboro, while Tatum is in her senior year at Vidalia HS, and has been accepted into UGA for 2020.

New Year found us at Terrie's, in FL where we had a paella for her family and friends. Tiffany is a nurse, her husband Kyle is minister of youth and their son Greyson is a very active 5 year old. Lindsey still lives in Bristol, has Jaxon 8, Allie 5, and is raising them as a single mom.

Spent a month in an Airbnb rental before returning to Dalton to prepare for a month long cruise from Buenos Aires around the tip of South America and on across the Pacific Ocean to Tahiti before returning in March. Wonderful trip to a part of the world we had not visited before. The Crystal Symphony lived up to its reputation and pampered us throughout the trip with 1:1 staff/passenger service.

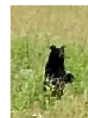

Returned just in time for granddaughter Katherine/Jake wedding in March. Enjoyed the time together with many of Shirley's family as well as all of the out of town grand and great grand children. We now have 19 grandchildren, 5 of them married with 4 great grandkids and one more due in January. Many of the grandkids have spread out all over the country so it was great to have so many here. We are truly blessed!

Steve(Corinna) is now managing a nursing home in Toccoa, GA and only has Joshua and Bethany at home. James is in Las Vegas, Whitney(Ryan & Jameson) in Savannah, Hannah(Aaron) live in Denver, and Micah is in the Army in Anchorage, AK. Katherine is still close in Calhoun, GA.

Rick(Samantha) now works for the hospital. Reagan is in NYC, Ethan in the Marines in CA, Colton will be a senior at UGA and is in Marine OCS.

Mike(Kim) has been promoted to CHRO at Shaw flooring. Sheridan will be a Delta fight attendant in 2020, Shelby is at UT and will go to graduate school next year, while Skylar will graduate from high school and go to college somewhere hopefully where she can play golf.

Spent a week in the Smokies in June, Williamsburg with Rick & Sam in July and on to Quantico for Colton's completion of OCS training. In July Shirley & all the girls were at the beach celebrating Sandi's 50th birthday. October found us in Puerto Rico celebrating 60 year medical school reunion and then on to Pittsburgh to visit my older brother's family and attend a benefit for our great niece who has Rhett's syndrome.

We had most of the family here for Thanksgiving: had paella on Wed and turkey on Thursday. Now we are getting ready for our annual FL winter trip. Will take a Caribbean cruise over Christmas/New Year, and then stay in an Airbnb near Terrie in Palm Harbor until March.

May God richly bless you this season and in the year ahead,

Stefan & Shirley

EXTRACURRICULAR PRODUCTIVITY

Dr. David Springstead (WSUGS 2022) and his bride, Dr. Allison Springstead (WSUGS 2021), are so excited to announce they are now proud parents of a baby boy, Elliott Robert Springstead. Elliott entered the world on Saturday, December 7, 2019, at 12:16 p.m. He weighed in at 5 lb. and 7 oz. and was 20.5" long. Allison and David are thankful for their new little son. They wish the extended WSU family a joyful holiday season!

Elliott Robert Springstead

The WSU clan extends their warm congratulations to David and Allison and welcome Elliott as the newest member to the WSU surgical family.

Lucas/Ledgerwood End-of-Rotation Party

Each December, Dr. Anna M. Ledgerwood (WSUGS 1972) hosts a party for the residents and students who rotated on the Lucas/Ledgerwood Services during the prior six months. This year's party was on Friday, December 20th.

Our future surgical residents!

Dr. Ledgerwood hosted this evening event at her home where many residents, students, their spouses and children were in attendance.

GREETINGS FROM THE OUTFIELD

PRODUCTIVITY

Dr. Mark Diebel (WSU/GS 2012/17) published a paper in the recent issue of the Journal of Trauma and Acute Care Surgery (2019;87:1061-1069) entitled "Protective Effects of Plasma Products on the Endothelial-Glycocalyx Barrier Following Trauma-Hemorrhagic Shock: Is Sphingosine-1 Phosphate Responsible?" His co-authors were Dr. Larry Diebel (WSU/GS 1980/86) and Mr. David Liberati.

Dr. Mark Diebel

This paper discusses the physiologic changes associated with hemorrhagic shock and subsequent resuscitation, including the fluid uptake phase, during which patients sequester large volumes of fluid in the extravascular space. They point out that the earlier use of plasma reduces the amount of fluid uptake and helps correct the coagulopathy, which contributes to this fluid uptake phase. Despite early resuscitation with plasma, however, there continues to be extravascular fluid uptake, which may be related to dysfunction of the endothelial-glycocalyx (EG).

Dr. Larry Diebel

Using human umbilical vein endothelial cells, which were cultured in micro-fluid plates, the authors created a simulated hemorrhagic shock state, after which they tested different types of plasma preparations on the integrity of the EG. The different plasma products included fresh plasma, 1-day old thawed plasma, 5-day old thawed plasma, and lyophilized plasma. These different products were supplemented with sphingosine-1 phosphate (S-1P) in order to test this addition to the above infusate. They monitored the effect of these perfusates on the EG by determining the degree of shedding of syndecan-1 and hyaluronic acid, which are monitors of EG integrity.

Mr. David Liberati

The authors demonstrated that hemorrhagic shock increased the shedding of syndecan-1 and hyaluronic acid. The administration of the various plasma products decreased this shedding, except for the 5-day old thawed plasma. The concentration of S-1P was significantly less in the 5-day old thawed plasma compared to the other plasma types, and the addition of S-1P to the 5-day old thawed plasma returned the EG function to the level of the other plasma infusates. They suggested that 5-day old thawed plasma contributes to EG dysfunction and that the addition of S-1P helps restore the protective effect of old plasma.

Wayne State Surgical Society

The Wayne State Surgical Society (WSSS) was established during the tenure of Dr. Alexander Walt as the Chairman of the Department of Surgery. WSSS was designed to create closer contact between the current faculty and residents with the former resident members in order to create a living family of all of the WSU Department of Surgery. The WSSS also supports department activities. Charter/Life Membership in the WSSS is attained by a donation of $1,000 per year for ten years or $10,000 prior to ten years. Annual membership is attained by a donation of $200 per year. WSSS supports a visiting lecturer each fall and co-sponsors the annual reception of the department at the annual meeting of the American College of Surgeons. Dr. Brian Shapiro (WSU/GS 1988/93) passed the baton of presidency to Dr. Jeffrey Johnson (WSUGS 1984) at the WSSS Gathering during the American College of Surgeons meeting in October 2018. Members of the WSSS are listed on the next page. Dr. Johnson continues in the hope that all former residents will become lifetime members of the WSSS and participate in the annual sponsored lectureship and the annual reunion at the American College of Surgeons meeting.

Operation-A-Year January 1—December 31, 2020

The WSU department of Surgery has instituted a new group of alumni who are remembering their training by donating the proceeds of one operation a year to the department. Those who join this new effort will be recognized herein as annual contributors. We hope that all of you will remember the department by donating one operation, regardless of difficulty or reimbursement, to the department to help train your replacements. Please send your donation to the Wayne State Surgical Society in care of Dr. Charles E. Lucas at Detroit Receiving Hospital, 4201 St. Antoine Street (Room 2V), Detroit, MI, 48201.

WSU SOM ENDOWMENT

The Wayne State University School of Medicine provides an opportunity for alumni to create endowments in support of their institution and also support the WSSS. For example, if Dr. John Smith wished to create the "Dr. John Smith Endowment Fund", he could donate $25,000 to the WSU SOM and those funds would be left untouched but, by their present, help with attracting other donations. The interest at the rate of 4% per year ($1000) could be directed to the WSSS on an annual basis to help the WSSS continue its commitment to improving the education of surgical residents. Anyone who desires to have this type of named endowment established with the interest of that endowment supporting the WSSS should contact Ms. Lori Robitaille at the WSU SOM> She can be reached by email at lrobitai@med.wayne.edu.
